

The decision by Sinclair Broadcasting to require their stations to carry an anti-Kerry documentary right before national elections is an example of mega-media irresponsibility and lawlessness.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves without charge and is required by law to promote the public interest--which it obviously is not doing. Its actions show why we need to strengthen required media guidelines, not weaken them.

Our country is in a very dangerous international situation, and citizens need the fullest information possible.

Sincerely,

Brant Abrahamson
